Greenspoint District Names New Executive Director For Foundation

The Greater Greenspoint District (GGD) recently promoted Shelia Redmon-Jones to executive director of its foundation, Greenspoint Community Partners. In her new role, Redmon-Jones' primary responsibility is to secure support for programs that strengthen the Greenspoint community through corporate donors, government grants and foundations. Greenspoint Community Partners works closely with the GGD to fund programs in three basic areas: public safety, recreational development and beautification.

"I've been connected to the Greenspoint community since I was a college student working at Greenspoint Mall," said Redmon-Jones. "It's been a wonderful experience to watch this community grow and to be a part of making it better. I look forward to working with the District as it continues to deliver the programs and services that help the area meet the challenges of a growing community in a large city," she added.

Redmon-Jones reports to Jerry Lowry, vice president and chief operating officer for GGD and chairman of the Greenspoint Community Partners' board of directors. "We look forward to accomplishing great things," said Lowry. He continued, "This community benefits when it has watchdogs aggressively seeking solutions for its challenges. I believe Shelia has the character and commitment necessary to keep us moving forward."

In 2000, Redmon-Jones joined the GGD as communications manager and was later promoted to manager of communications & community relations. She was previously employed by the Houston Chronicle and American General Life Companies, now AIG American General. She received her bachelor's degree in Journalism from the University of Houston and is a member of the Houston Alumni Association and the National Association of Female Executives (NAFE). She currently serves on the board of directors for the Leadership North Houston Alumni.
